By Tim O'Brien WASHINGTON, April 26 (WP).

-John Sawhill, the new head of the Federal Energy Office, revealed Jesterday that American consumers may have been cheated of about $100 million during the winter energy crisis.

Confirming what many drivers already knew, Mr. Sawbill said a joint investigation by the FEO and the Internal Revenue Service has uncovered a wide range of suspect pricing practices-illegal cost pass-throughs, violations of price-control regulations, illegal speculation in energy markets and simple pricing errors. He said the FEO has "already challenged or has under investigation about $100 million of cost pass-throughs."

Mr. Sawhill told a House Government Operations subcommittee that the continuing investigation has examined more than 47.-000 cases of suspected pricing mixpractice since Jan. 1, on both heating oil, propane and diesel fuel prices.

The energy chief said refunds may take two forms-lowered prices for consumers at large, or checks mailed to lists of specific curtomers.

it was announced today. Flow to West of Arab 'Petrodollars' Is Slower Than Expected

One reason for this is that the payments for oil from the big international oil companies have not yet reached the Middle Eastern oil-producing states in sizable amounts. Major oil companies such as Exxon. Mobil and Gulf normally pay their bills with lags of three to six months. The funds up in the oil companies' own accounts. Bigger transfers will occur within the next few months A second reason for the himited visibility of the Arabs' new wealth so for is that a great deal of

Arab money has been flowing

Thus, Soviet supplies of weapons to Egypt and Syria were ecsentially paid for by higher oil prices charged in the West by the Arabs. The Saudis Kuwanis and Libyans have been shipping money to the Russians, who transshipped some of it back to the United States. European sources estimate that the Arab payments to the Russians hate amounted to nearly $5 billians.

Trade Growing

Middle Eastern money is also being used in growing amounts to increase imports from Western Europe and Japan. In Europe. West Germany appears to reaping the biggest gains in trade with the Arabs.

Much oil money is Lkely to go for increasing imports of armadients from both the Soviet Union and the Western nations. Thus far, the Arabs are taking their time in making long-range investment commitments. Prof. Ibrahim Owers of Georgetown University says that they have studying all prespects and secking to find on their own what lars to meet their own external investments are open to them."

Prof. Owers, a native of Egypt, feels that the Arabs are in no hurry because of the lag in collecting the oil funds duc them: he suggests that the lag will last six or seven months more.

The greatest single share of Arab money seems to be coing iuto the Eurodollar market-dollar deposits in banks abroadand into foreign exchange, especially West German marks.

For the time being, the Arabs are staying bould. Such longform investment as they have done in Europe has gone into zilt-cáged securities in London and into West German bonds. and they have reportedly been buyers of gold. They have also parked millions in longer-term lime deposits, ranging from three to 10 years. Unlike the Arabs, Venezuela-a beneficiary of the quadrupled oil price-has been a heavy buyer of United States

Nervous About Dollar

The Arabs, American observers agree, are nervous about putting too much of their holdings intn dollars. They have been asking Washington for guarantees against further devaluations, but the Treasury has refused to give such guarantees. Some critics feel that the United States should be prepared to sell bonds to the Arabs, denominated in riyals or other Middle Eastern currencies. which would assure repayment without loss of value.

Eren without guarantees, much the Arab money going into the Eurodollar market is likely to find its way to the United States anyway-directly from the Middle East or indirectly by way of Europe-giren the sill daml-nant international role of the dollar and the size of the American capital market.

All countries that purchase oil are strapped for funds this year. The oll squeeze is intensitying the demand for Eurodollars by nations threatened with unpayable balance-nf-payments deficits. Including both private and public borrowings, Eurodollar loans this year arc inrecast to total $40 bilhou-chout double last year.

The resource-poor developing cnuntries, such as India. Bangladesh ann Pakistan, have been thrown into desperate strails by the increased oll price and regard Increased loans or aid from abroad as a life-and-death matter. And, more and more, it is ly moderate flow of Arab nll money and the heavy demands for funds, interest rates are being forced up. Although a bigger flow of Arab money into the capital markets is expected to case interest rates next summer. not all mnney-market experts are confident that a timely adjustment will take place. Now more than ever, such ecnnomists as Prof. Richard Cooper of Yale and Prof. Sidney Rolfe of Long Island University feel the world needs an internatinnal central bank to serve as a lender of last resort, should some major national financial institution crack. The danger is that, if there is no prompt bailnut, there could be an extinguishment of money and credit that would bring depression in its wake.

Others believe that such fears are exaggerated and that the highly developed international money markets will automatically take care of the recycling of excess funds flowing to the Middle Eastern states back into the normal channels of the world monetary system.

Today's vote followed a stormy 21-hour debate witnessed by unusually large crowds in the parliamentary visitors' gallery. For the actual vote, all the political parties freed their depu-ties from party discipline to enable them to vote according to their conscience.

In the end, the law passed by votes. The tally was 247 for, 233 against and nine abstentions.
Most of the negative votes came from the opposition Christian Democrats, who have strong ties to the Catholic Church, which vebemently apposed the law.

However, the opposition also cut across party lines, with negative votes being cast by some deputies from the twn government parties: Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats and the liberal Free Democrats. Two members of Mr. Brandt's cabinet, Justice Minister Gerhard Jahn and Agricul-ture Minister Josef Ertl, voted against the bill.

Peking Journal, in Power Politics, Compliments Franklin and Edison

TOKYO, April 26 (AP).-After months of being critical of Western culture, the Chinese Communist theoretical journal, Red Flag, has said some complimentary things about a couple of Americans—Ben Franklin and Thomas Edison.

It did so in an article calling on the Chinese masses to develop the nation's power industry. As reported by the Chinese news agency, monitored in Tokyo, Red Flag set out to prove that disgraced former President Liu Shao-chi and the late Lin Piao, former defense minister, were wrong when they insisted that the power industry was beyond ordinary

"In this way," it said, "they dampened the enthusiasm of the masses for running power plants and stations and used foreign dogmas' to oppose the principle of independence and

It added that some "bourgeois specialists" had said the power industry was complicated and had to be run by a few individuals, not the masses. Red Flag countered this argument with the examples of Franklin and Edison.

"Benjamin Franklin (1706-1790), who started as a printer's apprentice, was first in the world to discover the identity of electricity and it was Thomas Edison (1847-1931), a telegraph operator, who made the first battery," it said.

Soviet Radar Tracks Ships From Space

Polaris Surveillance Held Aim of System

By Thomas O'Toole

WASHINGTON, April 26 (WP).

The Soviet Union has orbited radar-carrying satellites that can monitor surface ship traffic around the globe, intelligence sources believe. sources believe.

The Soviet space program is understood to have put at least eight, and as many as 10, radar satellites into orbit in the last four years, each one an improve-ment over the other.

The United States has put no radar satellites into orbit, at least partly because of U.S. confidence in the reconnaissance satellites that photograph military activity around the earth.

Six-Week Life Span Intelligence sources believe the Soviet radar satellites still are experimental, operating for only six weeks at a time and only over the Indian Ocean and the Baltic Sca. Most space experts believe the Sovict radar satellite program seeks to detect Polaris submarines under the seas. One possible way of doing this would be to use orbiting infrared radar stations to track a submarine's heat wake. The last of the radar satellites is identified as Cosmos-626, which was launched from Tyura-tam in the Soviet Union Dec. 27, 1973. The satellite was rocketed into an orbit as high as 163 miles above the earth, where it stayed until Feh. 11.

Separates in Space

On that date Cosmos-626 "separated" into at least two parts, one of which was fired by its cwn rocket engine into a higher orbit. The North American Air Defense Command identified this part of the satellite as "an object of Cosmos-626", saying that it rocketed to an altitude of 614 miles.

The second part of the satellite stayed in the lower orbit, falling into the atmosphere and breaking np from atmospheric friction on March 22.

Intelligence experts believe that the part of Cosmos-626 that went into the higher orbit was the power supply for the orbital radar. Sources believe the power for the radar was supplied by the radioactive heat of Polonium-210, an isotope and an extremely active source of radioactive heat source of radioactive heat.

By means of an efficient but costly thermoelectric mechanism, it can be converted into as much as 2,000 kilowatts of electricity, enough to operate a radar set in orbit that could scan surface ships and even identify them according to shape and size.

Democrats Take 23-Point Lead in Harris Vote Poll

YORK, ADTH 26 (AP).-The Louis Harris survey gives the Democrats a 23-point advantage over Republicans in November congressional elections, the largest margin it has ever reported.

The poll organization said that survey of 1.184 "likely voters" late last month posed the question:

"If you had to decide right now. as far as this district is concerned, for Congress this fall do you think you would vote Republican or Democratic?" The results showed that 52 per-

'Seed Money' for Peace

President Nixon's request for $900 million. In the present case, the distribution of in foreign aid for the Middle East, divided among Israel. Egypt and Jordan, with a "contingency fund" that may be intended for Syrla, has been variously described. Mr. Nixon called his whole foreign aid package of $5.16 hillion the minimum investment which the United States could make "to maintain the present degree of international equilibrium and advance our efforts to construct a durable peace with prosperity." Some. like Sen. Fulbright, question the whole assistance program abroad; others, referring specifically to the Middle East allocations, call them a "halancing act." But the most ridiculous reaction is that which calls the Mideast portion of the package, pejoratively, an attempt to "buy peace."

It is ridiculous because, if a rational and durable peace could be purchased in the Middle East for twice $900 million it would he the best bargain the United States had ever made. It is also ridiculous because such a peace cannot he bought, and both President Nixon and Mr. Rissinger know that as well as their critics. The whole American experience in exporting cash and goods to help foreign countries proves that neither peace nor friendship are purchasable commodities: that the real service of forelgn ald is to provide, in a phrase very popular among American foundations, "seed money," in the hope that some tangihle benefits may result for the recipient, and some intangibles flow back to the sender. funds in the Middle East gives a concrete measure of the at least relative objectivity of the United States in its efforts to mediate the Middle East conflict.

And that is a worthy goal, It certainly does not imply an abandonment of Israel, as a viable national community, with legitimate security requirements. But at the same time it refutes a notion cherished by Arab radicals in spite of the American stand in the 1956 crisis) that Washington has no interest in Israel's neighbors, and is willing to Issue hlank checks to Israel itself.

Such a demonstration, through foreign aid, would not buy peace, but it could advance the prospects of peace. And that, for the short haul, is one of the most urgent tasks of American policy, and objectives of foreign assistance. It does not, of course, go to the roots of the deeper problem of economic relations between the haves and the havenots in the world, the subject which has engaged the present special session of the UN to, as yet, little positive purpose. Secretary-General Waldheim's intervention in the prolonged nebate, urging action by the UN before the session on raw materials adjourns. was a sharp reminder that this broad problem has its own urgencies, to which the American foreign aid programs must soon be adjusted. But for Congress, the Middle East is an immediate need, a "house on fire" that must be saved. Its own actions in that area cannot walt upon the creation of an international approach to the global crisis,

France's Election Battle

campaign in France has opened the possibility of a fundamental change in the country's political future. After 16 years of oneman and one-party domination under Gen. de Gaulle and his successor. President Pompidou, a serious double challenge to continued Gauilist rule has been mounted from Socialist François Mitterrano, who obtained 2 45 percent vote against De Gaulle in 1965, has been gaining support with a middle-of-the-road approach that has brought reproving murmurs from his Communist allies. The Communists and all other significant left and center-left candidates have withdrawn from the race, opening the possibility of his winning more than 50 percent of the votes. Which would mean election in the first round of polling on May 5.

At the same time. Jacques Chaoan-Delmas, a former prime minister under President Pompidou, has been losing ground to his chief competitor on the center-right. Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the conservative leader of the Gaullist-allied Independent Republicans.

"Change without risk" is the slogan that may propel Mr. Giscard d'Estaing into second place in the May 5 voting and even make him the favorite against Mr. Mitterrand in the two-candidate second-round runoff if no candidate wins a majority in the first round. Despite his unpopularity among traditional Gaullists and a general conviction that his conservative views would make him a less effective candidate against Mr. Mitterrand in the second round. Mr. Glscard d'Estaing's performance already is bringing pledges of Gaullist runoff support.

A few left-wing Gaullists have announced a preference for Mr. Mitterrand over either of Rapidly and unexpectedly, the presidential the chief center-right candidates. Although these announcements represent only a handful of votes, they reflect the growing feeling in France that something fundamental is

> Mr. Mitterrand's election would of course bring the most radical change, despite his moderate campaign. It would give France its first Communist ministers since 1947 and bring a period of political instability, with new parliamentary elections and, probably. a flight of capital.

> Mr. Giscard d'Estaing unnoubteely would try to build a broad center coalition and might lose significant Gaullist support in the process. A gradual political realignment might well be the result, with Gaullist strength waning and the moribund center parties resuming their role as the arbiters of French politics.

> But even a victory by Mr. Chaban-Delmas would probably mean an end of the Gaullist era as known in the past. The fact that he is only able to win about 25 percent of the vote in current poils reveals to all the limited support of the Gaullist party, now that De Gaulle and Mr. Pompidou are gone. It remains the biggest party, but unable any longer to govern alone, if need be, All the main candidates are fighting for middle-of-the-road support and, in foreign policy, that means endorsing a united Europe and friendship with the United States. Their personal inclinations also favor this policy. But Mr. Mitterrand would have difficulty carrying his Communist allies in that direction. Mr. Chaban-Delmas or Mr. Giscard d'Estaing, in contrast, would undoubtedly make Paris an easter partner in the Western alliance than France has been during most of the last 16 years.

Overturn in Portugal

Idealistic Portuguese Army officers, determined to restore democracy at home and peace to the African territories, appear to have succeeded—on their second attempt in five weeks-in overthrowing Premier Marcello Caetano's authoritarian government. The National Junta of Salvation, as the rebel force calls itself, promises to govern the country only until elections can be held for an assembly that will write a new, democratic constitution.

A break in the surface solidarity of armed forces support for the wars to put down black freedom fighters in Angola. Mozambique and Guinea-Bissau became inevitable when Portugal's most popular soldier came home from four years in Africa to declare that military victories could not be attained. Gen. Antonio de Spinola warned in a book that the wars were only isolating Portugal from friends and allies and impoverishing the country.

The abortive rising of some army units after the dismissal in March of Gen. Spinola and his superior from Portugal's two top military posts indicated how deeply the forces had been affected by Spinola's warnings and by his advocacy of self-determination for the African territories and their possible federation as equal states with the mother country. The new junta's first declaration, promising peace among Portuguese "of all creeds and races." reflects exactly the spirit of Gen. Spinola's rhetoric.

If the junta-said to include both Gen. Spinola and Gen. Francisco da Costa Gomes, who was dismissed with him last monthcan carry out its program it will lift a great load from a NATO alllance constantly embarrassed by a member government that practiced repression at home and pursued colonial wars in Africa

Of far greater importance, the junta promises to render justice to black majorities in the African territories and restore freedom to Portuguese who have never really known it since the beginning of the dictatorship o. the late Antonio de Oliveira Salazar over 40 years ago.

The Kissinger-Jackson Row

By James Reston

WASHINGTON—The Rissinger-Jackson row over how to negotiate a strategic military arms agreement with the Soviet Union illustrates what happens here when a President loses the confidence of the people and politicians hegin scrambling to suc-

For centuries the nations have been trying unsuccessfully to oring the weapons of war under control and it is obvious now that nobody in Washington or in Moscow has any clear answer to the problem. Therefore, at-tempts to minimize the danger of one more round in the arms race require at least some confidence in the good faith and integrity of the negotiators, But in the present poisonous atmosphere of suspicion in Washington, there is very little confidence in the good faith of any-body in the White House, the Coogress or the press, Man speak ann act, but their words and actions are not taken straight but searched for some other hidden motive.

Tragic Element

The suspicion is often justified, but there is an element of tragedy in all this, for the atmosphere of doubt in Washington is now beginning to spread beyond Watergate and politics to policy. not only to the President and the cast of characters in the political scandals, who are the men of the past, but to people like Jackson and Kissinger, who may have more to say about the future and the polic; of arms control than anybody else.

The main thing about this is that Kissinger and Jackson are now involved in a public row about the control of nuclear mental question should be nego-tiated with the Soviet Union, but have never really talked out their agreement because the President frontations of the cold war, differences in private hefore they differed with one another in public.

both intelligent and knowledgeable men, and know that the control of arms has reached a critical point with Moscow. Mr. Jackson waots a comprehensive agreement with the Russians on arms control, which Mr. Kissinger also wants but thinks he cannot

Therefore, Mr. Kissinger is willing to do the best he can to keep the talks going. What, be asks, if we added to all our present difficulties at home and the Middle East the demands of Sen. Jackson and a retorn to the confrontations of the cold war. Why argue about the number of missiles? People are killed by nuclear warheads and not by the missiles themselves so we bave to avoid 20,000 missiles with multiple warheads by the end of the 1970s, and slow down the arms race as best we can,

Jackson insists that we draw the line with the Soviet Union now—force an agreement for a major reduction of arms, de-mand that the Soviet Union agree to the emigration of 100,000 Soviet citizens a year, not only the aggrieved Jews but the dissidents from the Ukraine and the Baltle states and the other Soviet nationalities as well.

Now is the time, Jackson asys, to be tough. Now is the time, says Kissinger, to be careful You can make a good case elther way, and the issues are so complicated and so grave and even dangerous that it is hard to understand why these two men do not talk out the controversy in private before they throw it into the headlines

Jackson is now charging in the secretary of state are rushing into a compromise arms on arms, even if, as Jackson beheves, it is a fake.

The administration denies this in public and suggests in private that Jackson is really running for president on an anti-Soviet, pro-labor and pro-Israel platform. Probably there is some truth in this both ways, but not much.

We are in terrible trouble in Washington these days, but we have not really declined to the point that the administration would fiddle with the security of the Republic in order to pick up a few conservative votes in the House and Senate against the impeachment and conviction of the President. On other issues, marbe, but on strategic arms, the balance of power in the world, and the future safety of the nation, certainly not,

Similarly, Jackson may be running for the presidency, but again not by proposing policies, that would help him at the expense of the nation. But in the present mood of this city, everybody tends to believe the worst in what men say and do. This is the tragedy of Watergate for everybody, and nobody knows it bere better than Kissinger and Jackson, do not discuss their honest dif-ferences. After all, Kissinger's success rests on the fact that, as an outsider he won the confldeoca of Richard Nixon, Chou En-lai in China, of President Sadat in Egypt, Golda Meir in Israel, and the elders of the Congress of the United States.

The standard armor comprises Russian T-55 and T-62 tanks. The infantry's principal automatic weapon is the Russian Kalashnikov. When gitmpsing these facts fusthand one appreciates what a momentous decision it was for President Anwar Sadat to announce that Egypt would no longer depend for military equipment on the Soviet Union alone. The ultimate implication is plain: Slowly the United States will be asked to move in as the main substitute supplier.

Not that this was Sadat's immediate Intention. He hoped sumply to avoid relying wholly on Moscow's goodwill, thus becoming subject to its blackmall. But things don't go by easy stages in this part of the world and the Kremlin caught the message. It is already tightening the screws on Egypt before the United States can even hegin to belp.

Plea Spurned

It has spurned Sadat's plea to defer the scheduled installment on payment for Soviet arms already turnished. It has failed to send promised MiG-23 aircraft or vital spare parts. It has choked off economic commodities unless Egypt pays hard cash it doesn't possess. Already tea and sugar are strictir rationed here. Moscow obviously realizes the immensity of its loss to Washington in terms of influence in this key to the Arab and Mediterranean worlds. Now it is fighting back by subversion, propaganda and economic pressure. It deem't like the thought that all its costly investment has gone down the drain.

For decades Cairo's Middle Eastern prestige bas been rivalled by that of Baghdad, often in partnership with Damascus. In 1971, when Sadat squashed a plot against him by allegedly pro-Sorlet leaders and arrested virtually all Moscow's Egyptian agents, the Kromlin retaliated by boltering Iraq and Syria.

Outlook for Rabin: Battle With Factions

By Terence Smith

TERUSALEM.-Moments after Mr. Rabin, a heavy smoker, bat Yitzhak Rabin was nominated by the Labor party to succeed Premier Golds Meir, one of the former general's close aides stood in the rear of the party hall shaking his head in sympathy. "Now his troubles really begin." the aide said as he joined in the jubilant applause for the premierdesignate. "I don't envy him the next few weeks." In the minds of many Israelis. indeed, the former chief of staff and ambassador to Washington has won a duhious honor. It is reminiscent of the old Broadway gag about the contest in which the first prize is a week in Philadelphia and the second prize is two weeks. Given Israel's current political turmoul, the nomination the political equivalent of second prize. Mr. Rabin has been invited hy his party to do in the next six weeks what Mrs. Meir struggled and ultimately failed to do in four months: construct a viable coalition out of the political havoc that bas followed the shock of the initial setbacks in the October

Factionalism

To do so he will have to unite the factions of his own splintered party and persuade some of the smaller parties to join Labor in the cabinet. The Labor party has a 54-seat plurality in the 120-seat parliament; Mr. Rabin's aim will be to enlarge that to at least a majority-61 seats-and preferably more.

It will not be easy since tha divisions in the Labor party remain, and the smaller parties will lay down difficult and probably conflicting conditions for participation. If Mr. Rabin fails there will be no real alternativa to a national election, Although Mr. Rabin will face many of the same problems that confronted Mrs. Meir, he has several things going for him that she did not. In the opinion of a number of Israeli politicians, these assets give him at least a 50-50 chance of success.

He will benefit from a clearly discernible trend toward conciliation and compromise. Nearly all Israelis are exhausted as a result of the months of sustained politi-cal crisis and infighting. They are hungering for new leadershin, a government that can govern and a period of relative stability.

Furthermore, Mr. Rabin personifles the change that Israelis of every political persuasion seem to want. Unlike Mrs. Meir, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and others in the current leadcrship, he bears no taint from the October war. Nor is he identified, in fact or in the public's mind, with the factionalism that has bulled the Labor party apart and strained everyone's patience.

It is possible that with his nomination the party has begun the process of healing the factional wounds that go back to the days of the late Premier David Ben-Gurion. The vote hy the 614-member Central Committee eut across factional lines, and new alignments emerged in the Observing this, Ehud Avriel, 2 veteran political figure and former ambassador, said: "A new political dynamism is sweeping this party. The younger people who have been kept down so long are as-serting themselves, and the divisions that separated the old guard mean nothing to them."

It is also significant that the Central Committee largely ignored the personal allegations leveled against Mr. Rabin in the 48 hours before the vote. Ezer Weizman, his former deputy, had published memorandum asserting that Mr. Rabin suffered a nervous collapse on the eve of the 1967 war. he had nad nicotine poisoning Such a charge might well have destroyed a candidate in other circumstances whether justified or not. The October war robbed Mr. Dayan of much of his charisms and made him politically vulnerable. He has accumulated ; lot of political enemies over the years as the party's "enfant ter.

tion that his stature has been much reduced. Foreign Minister Ahha Eban has lost ground as well. He made no secret of his opposition to Mr. Rabin, and it is hard to imagine him serving in a Rabin government. Perhaps the major beneficiarthe maneuvering is Shimon Pcres, the information ministr in the carctaker governmen who has a reputation for capability. After years in the shadov of Mr. Ben-Gurion and then of

Two Americas

"Nixon From Alar" (Letters, April 16) concludes that, perhaps, there are two Americas—Mr. Nixon's conservatives, and The Washington Post's liberals. The letter is obviously correct. Some further observations on the subject follow:

I—There are also "two" Frances, Englands, Germanys, Japans, elc., throughout the list of all countries in the world

2-The primary difference between "conservatives" and "liberals" has nothing to do with national boundaries. The dictionary defines "liberal" as inclining toward opinions or policies favoring progress or reform, and "conservative" as inclining lo-ward the preservation of the existing order of things; opposed to change.

3-The basic difference between the two camps, as reflected by political and social actions, is their concept of "man" and "human nature." Conservatives believe that nothing (programs, equication, environment) can change the basic, age-old instructs "man"-including his strong instincts of self-survival and tribalism. Therefore wars will continue to be fought, and the profitmotivated free enterprise economy (capitalism) will result in the greatest, most efficient quality production—and happiness. Libcrais believe that the basic instincts of man can be changed-so that Man finally will give up self-interest and tribalism and voluntarily really desire the

Mitterrand, Giscard in Lead

As Drive Enters Last Week PARIS, April 26 (Reuters).— The French presidential election campaign entered its final week today with Socialist François Mitterrand and conservative Valery Giscard d'Estaing leading the race Gaullist former Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas, an early favorite, received support today from Foreign Minister Michel Jobert, However, public opinion polls have shown that Mr. Chaban-Debnas's fortimes have been fading recently and Mr. Jobert's intervention may have come too late to help

Nevertheless one hope remained for Mr. Chaban Delmas: the possibility that Gaullist outsider Jean Royer might withdraw from the race because of constant interruptions of his election rallies, which are threatening to bring his campaign to a standstill thre-leftist youths are reported-ly responsible for the interruptions, which were denounced yes-

Important Statement Mr. Royer, an anti-pornography eampaigner and champion of shopkeepers promised to make an important statement tomorrow after being forced from the campaign rostrum in Toulouse last night under a hail of eggs, rotten fruit and obscenities.

Mr. Royer's followers were beheved likely to vote for Mr. Chaben Delmas if Mr. Royer were to pull out of the race. But Mr. Royer, who is given 6 percent of vote in the latest opinion polis, is not believed to be planning to withdraw.

Breaking his silence on the presidential election, Mr. Johert said that he was endorsing the former prime minister because he held out the best hope of peace

He indicated that Mr. Chaban-

UN Chief Is Given Appeal on Food

UNITED NATIONS, NY April 26 (AP) .-- More than 1,000 leading citizens from 94 countries mged an immediate solution to world food shortages yesterday, wanning that "tens of millions of hves are at stake.

A delegation representing the international grouping presented a call for action to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim here. Norman Borlaug, 1970 Nobel Peace Prize-winner, said: When you have hunger, you have an _explosive type of situation."

British author and scientist C. P. Snow, who read the appeal, said his prediction years ago that the world would live to see people dying of starvation on television had come true. He called the .: situation "desperate."

Delmas would faithfully pursue the late President Georges Pompidou's foreign policy, which he asserted was supported by almost two out of three Frenchmen.

As the second and last week of the campaign began-it ends ofincially next Friday just before the Sunday, May 5, first-round election — Mr. Mitterrand. Mr. Giscard d'Estaing and Mr. Chaban-Delmas pressed o . with their electioneering toms of the prov-

The campaign took on a vituperative note after a stormy, often hostile, broadcast debate last night between the two leading

Mr. Giscard d'Estaing who is the finance minister, and Mr. Mitterrand—who is seeking election as candidate of the united ielt, including the Communists— clashed repeatedly over the econcmy and on ways of halting France's soaring inflation. After the debate, which was carried on a peripheral radio station, but not on the staterun radio-TV network, Mr. Mitterrand was acclaimed at one of France's biggest political rallies in years. The lertist candidate, who said he believed the presidency was within his grasp, was wildly cheered at the Palais des Sports in Paris by a crowd which organizers estimated at 100,000.

The rally was Mr. Mitterrand's only major scheduled campaign appearance on the same platform with Communist party leader Georges Marchais.

Bogus Newspaper Seized

Earlier yesterday, the Mitterrand forces won a court order for the seizure of a bogus newspaper which depicts France ravaged by death, strikes and famine under the presidency of Mr. Mitterrand.

The Mitterrand camp charged that supporters of Mr. Chaban-Delmas were behind the news-paper, which is dated Jan. 2, 1975. More than two million copies have been circulated.

the campaign's half-way mark, the battle for the first two spots in the first round of the election appears to be developing into a fight between Mr. Mitterrand and Mr. Giscard d'Estaing.

The latest surveys all predict Mr. Mitterrand would receive the biggest number of votes in the first round with a little more than 40 percent of the ballots, Mr. Giscard d'Estaing was placed second with around 27 percent and Mr. Chaban-Delmas third with about 23 percent.

If no candidate wins a majority in the first round, the two with the highest scores will go into the second and final round of the election May 19, when, in theory, the parties of the Gaullist coalition are expected to unite behind one candidate.

Volunteer Army Cost U.S. Extra $734 Million

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP). -The Defense Department yesterday revealed that the new volunteer armed force cost an additional $734 million in the first full year since elimination of the draft.

But the Pentagon estimated that this cost may be offset by savings resulting from longer periods of service per man-reducing it to $300 million or less,

The Pentagon estimates were supplied to the Senate Armed Services Committee, The department explained that precise accounting for the share of the budget directly attributable to conversion to a volunteer force was impossible because it depended upon varylug judgment about what program costs should be included, The Pentagon said its "most costs would total $734 million in fiscal 1974 ending June 30 and $743 million in fiscal 1975.

But the annual budget savings resulting from the lower turnover rate is estimated at $400 million to $500 million in 1975 and $500

ROME, April 26 (NYT).-News- almost all of the country's newspapermen frequently indulge in papers. Italy has about 80 dailies pipe dreams about founding a daily of their own, and when Indro Montanelli anoounced this week he was about to start a paper, be signalled a major even! in the Italian press.

Mr. Montanelli is a leading journalist who is widely read throughout Italy. He has managed to find financiers to back a venture that is expected to lose a considerable amount of money. at least during its first few years. It is rumored here that about $3 million, and possibly more, is at Mr. Montanelli's disposal.

Newsmen here are exerted because Mr. Montanelli has begun hiring talent for his new daily at salaries far higher than the atterage earnings in the profession here. Some contracts he has offered reportedly call for up to $5,000 a month for reporters and commentators.

Former Colleagues

Mr. Montanelli, 65, who will be managing editor of the new daily, appears to be assembling a writing staff majoly by luring former colleagues away from Corriere della Sera ol Milan, Italy's orggest newspaper, for which ne worked for many years.

Mr. Montanelli's daily will oknown as Il Giornale and is scheduled to start publishing in Milau early this summer.

Mr. Montanelli and his backers are initially aiming at a nationvide circulation of 150,000 copies. Tuesday through Sunday, Corriere della Sera, which is pubhalied seven days a week, has a nationwide circulation of close 700,000. It loses money, as do Daumier, Galerie Vision Nouvelle. 6 Place des Etats-Unis. Paris 16. to June 15.

For some 50 years Daumier devoted much of his talent to drawings for satirical publicatious and produced about 4,000 lithographs on such subjects as the petits bourgeois of Paris, lawyers, doctors, artists, as well as on the stage and political events. One hundred and futy of these works are on show here and remind one. If a reminder is necessary, that Daumier had extraordinary capacity and range. The eloquence of his line, its theatrical expressiveness, its vigorous sinuosity make each drawing astonishingly memorable. The human comedy is captured with a keen satirical understanding, and in particular the constant effort of the bourgeois to live up to their impossibly idealistic standards of social

Actively involved in painting for the past 50 years, he continues to produce with enthusiasm. His best work solid black surfaces and lace-fine is characterized by an off-center type of composition in which the environment-treated in a rawcolored, somewhat fauvist manner --takes precedence over the human figure. The present show includes paintings and drawings from his notebooks.

Roland Cat, at 30, appears to be fulfilling the promise of recent years. He fuses the possibilities of an excellent craft with those of a fantastical imagination marked with the peculiar stamp of science-fiction. His paintings the uses ink applied with a brush are miniaturistic and he tends to represent space with the sort of detailed breadth and depth one finds in Altdorfer.

Rome

Sandro Tripodo. Centro per l'Informazione Visiva, 22 Via Ripetto. Rome.

Compared to much that the art world offers today. Tripodo's show is among the most alive. Tin cans, glass from old Chianti bottles, burned wood, clothes hangers. rocks and baby carriages are put to good use. With good humor and energy. Tripodo makes a world of totems, gods and absurd machines. A stone wheel, bristling with nails on one side, crunches, when rolled, as ocean surf. Bricks hanging by strings from a bicycls wheel seem to be components of an acolian harp of a forgotten race. All the hollows of a clay man, stretched on the ground, sprout fresh, red tulips. Tripodo might be called a primitive, latter-day dadaist. Eut his work is more than that; a slapdash, happy-go-lucky spirit, sometimes too much ahundance, pervades his universe of found things. Because his art seems so artless and useless, it is exactly the opposite.

Recent Oils and Pastels by Pasquale Verrusio. Fante di Spade, 254 Via Ripetta, Rome,

Verrusio's descriptions of the ordinary—a truck parked near the sea, a towel thrown over a rack, a city park under light snow—are painted without haste in milky. bluish tints. His work belongs to a trend widespread in the United States, but rare in Italy where new realism most often takes an over-explicit political turn. Verrusio is concerned about surfaces, claborate frameworks, studded with pegs; the canvas is nailed down in places in such a fashion that the nail dents alternate with peaks, formed by the pegs behind the material. At times the canvas is treated to make it transparent, permitting the outlines of the underpinnings to add another dimension. Tha aim is balance and purity. Castellani was once an architect. His well calibrated constructions are neither painting nor sculpture but fit either description.

Sergio Birga. Trifalco. 22 Via del Vantaggio, Rome, to May 9. The work of this young Italian, who lives in Paris, brings to mind a host of master printmakers: the flamelike contrasts of Masereel and Posada woodcuts, Ensor's imaginative etchings, the realism of Dix and the Neue Sachlichkeit. All have impressed Birga. When he observes what is immediately before him, as in his straightforward views of the demolition of Les Halles, he is at his most vivid and on the road to an expression of his own. -EDITH SCHLOSS.

THE ART MARKET

How an Expert Fills In The Gaps at a Print Sale

By Souren Melikian

DARIS, April 26 (IHT).—Marcel Lecomte is an expert of the old school, one of Prance's two leading authorities on prints, who, in 40-year career, has seen all there is to see in his field yet retains passionate interest in his specialty.

When you see him in action, you understand why there is no substitute for attending auctions in person. Take the sale on Monday at the Hôtel Drouot, conducted by anctioneer Guy Loudmer.

The catalogue was terse, as catalogues are for print sales and print sales are becoming more frequent. But Lecomte more than made up for the laconic catalogue and threw in some advice as objects came up for sale.

For instance, Edouard Vuillard'a "L'Atelier," a lithograph, was for instance, Educard variance. I Atener, a managerigh, was described in the catalogue as "Cl. Roger-Marx, No. 11, very rare lithograph, margins trimmed, framing marks visible, about 20 conies printed." The "Cl. Roger-Marx" referred to art critic Clauda Roger-Marx who wrote a catalogue raisonné on Vuillard's graphics. Lecunte pointed out that the lithograph had been done at the beginning of Vuillard's career as a graphic artist. The margins had probably been cut by his publisher Ambroise Vollard. All three copies that Lecomte had handled in his career had had their margins cropped in the same way, with rounded corners. A true masterpiece of neo-impressionism, the print made 4,870 francs.

North

At another point, a group of 11 frontispleces by Felicien Rops divided into small lots, came up for sale. Lecomte identified from memory the books for which they had been made, commenting on the condition of every one.

The first three frontispleces by Rops, an extraordinary late 19thcentury symbolist, were sold together for only 986 francs. A major dry point, again by Rops (who is beginning to he "discovered" by art critic:, with an original three-color sketch on the margin, and with the artist's signature, rose to 2,320 francs. Five years ago, Lecomte said, it would have made about a fourth of that sum.

Lecomte's comments all through the sale were invaluable to heginners and helpful to experienced collectors, the sort of information art lovers can get only when they are on the spot. Moreover, the sale proved that there are still some very fine pieces by famous masters to be had.

Those who are more interested in art than in collector's standards, can make splendid acquisitions. A very fine aquatint by Camille Pissarro, "La Femme sur la Route," was sold for 1,320 francs to the expert himself—Lecomte acting on behalf of his friend Paul Proute, France's other great graphics expert.

But the Pissarro had its "faults"—from a collector's viewpoint. In the catalogue it was said to be signed. But Lecomte pointed out that this needed correction—the signature had been added by a previous owner. This is not unusual: Artists often forget to sign one or two prints in a run of 40 or 60. But commercially the lack of a signature diminishes the value drastically.

Had the Pissarro signature been genuine, Lecomte said, the price would have been three times as high.

The finest prints were often not by major painters. My personal favorite in the sale—and apparently that of Marcel Lecomte, who bought it for his own collection-was a superb etching by Theo van Rysselberghe, "Barques de Pêche," bearing the artist's stamp. Done in subtle shades of sepia, at 348 francs, it went for a song. It should be stressed that Lecomte, although himself interested in this print, drew attention to its fine quality, a sign of disinterestedness which is rare enough among collectors let alone among experts.

Lecomte was just as frank about other prints which he had been commissioned to buy by his friend Proutee. When he described T.A. Steinlen's "Misère," a signed lithograph, 19th in a series of 30, he emphasized its admirable qualities. There was, however, not one hid against his own starting hid and he got it, again for Proutee, for Such healthy straightforwardness, coupled with immense knowledge devoid of pomposity makes Lecomte's rare appearances at Hôtel Drouot worth one's while.

"A Ghost on Tiptoe" is intended as a vehicle for him, although that is putting a tired old cart before the horse. Mr. Morley is a slightly-tiring Atlas who carries the evening on his broad shoulders and, providing that an audience is as pleased with his performance as he is land they better he, for he is apt to glare intimidatingly when laughs do not come), they will enjoy themselves mildly.

Anthology

"Ghost on Tiptoe" is the usual anthology of middle-aged, middleclass fears of death, of recalcitrant children, of the predic-tability of a long, unrewarding marriage and fantasies. The play features that recent addition to stock characters ("Butterflies Are Free" and the current sex-comedy "Why Not Stay for Breakfast?" rely on it. too: the scatty, liberated, sexually in-discriminate hippy girl, here played, no more convincingly than usual, by Karin Fernald who deserves better. Mr. Morley is his abnormal stage self, a greedy, aging child pretending to be a rich grocer who has been told he has a year to live and decides to forget work and enjoy himself. The opening moments suggest that the comedy is going to match its serious death and a person's preparations for that moment of extinction that defines a lifehut this is speedily abandoned for some more familiar jokes. Mr. Morley is equipped with a son who wants to be a poet and works as a municipal baths attendant and a wife who never listens to a word he says.

As the play proceeds, Mr. Morley is reduced to displaying his comic talents in a vacuum and be is a little curmudgeonly about even doing that: He gets through the evening on three expressionsjowl-shaking horror, cychailpopping anger, and a sulk in which all the roundities of his face melt into a deflating pink football. He also gives us some tantrums and a few moments of high spirits, notahiy when serving a bouillabalsse made with goidfish.

Towards the end, there is a sudden flurry of plot, as if the cast had suddenly remembered that they were appearing in a play, and Mr. Moriey puts on some funny clothes, obviously tiring of the effort of sustaining some sort of verbal bumor. His bare legs are moderately amusing. But it is, Mr. Morley's buik; humor notwithstanding and certainly not with sitting, which he does with such difficulty that you fear he may never rise again;

Heaven knows I dn not expect much from British musicals and bell troughly defined as a seat in the stalls at the Queen's Thestre-will confirm that even these slight expectations are not satisfied by the deplorable "Bordello" which turns the life of Toulouse-Lautrec into a dreary song-and-dance routine interspersed with a few ilashes of tit-and-bum.

It is a pity, because money and care have gone into the showdirector John Cox shows an excellent sense of staging and there is an ornate and effective set-although none seems to have been spent on providing a necent book or lyrics. Indeed, it could be argued that what the producers had in mind was comething indecent. Eroticism has clearly been simed at, although what is achieved is a sad vulgarity. From the moment Henry Woolf enters as Lautrer to warble a sentimental ballad about the Robert Morley, who collaborated on his new play with

They profmoments from Lautrec's life. making the mistake of presenting him as an active amorous participant, a high-powered lover.

Mr. Woolf seems to have been chosen to play the oa artisis painter because he happens to be the right height for the part. He is a good actor, especially at portraying a benevolent innocence as he did memorably in Peter Handke's "Kaspar", which is the one quality that Lautres lacked. He sings badly and cannot even chant his songs in time with the music.

He is, too, meidental to vice show's purpose which seems to he no more than to display a great many girls in erotic costumestight corsets, black stockings and garters. ## Spin-a-Wheel Museum Takes Movies Back to Prehistory

By Jan Sjöby

BRUSSELS (1HT).—We aren't man staff of the Royal Film the oldest film museum in Archives, The archives organized Europe." said Jacques Ledoux, "nor the biggest. But I believe we are unique, just the same. We are the only thuseum to deal seriously not only with the hisfory of the cinema but the prehistory of moving pictures."

Mr. Ledoux, director of the Brussels Cinema Museum and the Royal Film Archives, may have a point. In the tiny museum in the Palais des Beaux-Arts, a visitor who remembers little of the times before Tom Mix may find out for himself how a "laterna magica" functioned. Most of the tricks that, eventually, led the development of motion pictures are unveiled.

The spinning of a drum or a disk, or the cranking of a handle. may send a black dog jumping fiver a series of lences or make that daring young man on the llying trapeze perform. "Motion pictures," Mr. Ledoux continued. "means just that, pictures that move by technical trickery. We have tried to sum up the process of the development, beginning with prehis-tory."

Replicas

The machines on display in this tirro-the-crank, push-the-button and spin-the-wheel museum are carefully reconstructed replicas.

The originals are simply too priceless," said Mr. Ledoux, "and 100 frail to be tinkered with by the general public. They may be examined by serious scholars but the copies we have made are laufifully modeled recreations of the machinery for optical illusion that raised evebrous a century or two or three avo."

Mr. Ledoux, now 50, was planning an engineering career in 1945 when be became the one-

"much as Brucgei and Rubens eanyases were in another time. We try to keep the present generation in touch with the visions of their parents." Mr. Ledoux estimates that the museum and archives are, at present, staffed by some 20 to 25 employees. Beginning in the tax year 1976-77, it is proposed that a foreign resident who has lived in Britain for five of the previous six years will be taxed on the full amount of his earnings, not only his salary, but also his investment income and capital gains.

For those taxed on half their salary (remitted or not), it ap-pears the new system would tax investment income or capital gains only if remitted to Britain. The blil and its tax proposals must be passed by Parliament before becoming law. Some provisions of the bill could be changed during parliamentary committee work on the bill.

The American Chamber of Commerce in London, in a statement issued after the bill's provisions were first outlined, asked: "Is it right to abandon the well-estab lished and internationally-recogdistinction between rest dence and domicile in tax matters in favor of a mechanical rule which would treat a foreigner in which would treat a foreigner in the same way as a British subject born and resident here, solely be-cause the foreigner has been ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom for five out of the previous six years?"

Times, in an article on the tax proposals, said: "The appropriate price (for a foreigner resident in Britain) should be a reasonable contribution to the U.K.'s economic wellbeing.

"In-most cases, of course, this appropriate price should be that which has to be paid by ordinary U.K.-based persons, namely payment of full U.K. taxes.

But simply because this is the most usual price it should not lend the government to assume that this price is the one which will be of the greatest overall economic advantage to the UK. the comment continued.

OPEC Eyes Profits Tax On Companies

VIENNA, April 26 (UPI).-Experts of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will meet Monday to discuss ways of taxing excess oil company profits, an OPEC spokesman said today.

"We want to find ways of taxing windfall profits," the spokesman sald.

He said experts from OPEC's 12 member states which produce 85 percent of world oil exports-would meet for two days at the organization's Vienna beadquarters to draw up proposals for the next meeting of oil ministers in Quito, Ecuador, in June.

"Oil companies have made exorbitant profits like never before in the past few months," the spokesman said.

"Until 1973 oil companies" profits amounted to 50 or 60 cents on a barrel of crude oil But in the last few months it rose to $4 or $4.50 per harrel." the spokesman stated.

Bank Lifts Prime Rate To Record 11% in U.S.

WESTBURY, N.Y., April 26 (Reuters).—Franklin National Bank today raised its prime rate to 11 percent from 10 L/2 percent, effective immediately. Harold Gleason, chairman of the bank, said that money-market conditions more than justify the increase.

"We might as well face reality and get to the top as soon as possible. Pussy-footing only prolongs the agony of waiting for the decline," he said.

Franklin, the 20th in size among domestic banks, is the first major money center bank to move to 11 percent leapfrogging the 10 3/4 percent rate set by Citizens & Southern Bank, of Atlanta, carlier this week. Money market analysis were surprised by the speed with which the rate has moved over the past three weeks, with many not expecting the prime rate to hit II percent until some time

However, they said that the discount rate increase to a record 8 percent earlier this week has put further pressure on open market money rates, with one New York bank reportedly writing 30 to 90-day certificates of deposit for 11 percent this

One leading analyst, commenting on the prime rate situation, said. Whatever historic perspective seems to have gone out of the window."

cluding Japan, want to guarantee themselves a stable supply from the United States, "they need to plan ehead-to let us know in advance what their needs will be. and to purchase farther ahead and store more of their own reeds," Mr. Butz said.

U.S. Trade Deficit Is 1st in Nine Months

WASHINGTON, April 26 : Reuters).-The United States recorded its first trade deficit in nine months in March as the value of imports exceeded that of exports hy $171.3 million, the Commerce Department reported today.

The March deficit followed surpluses of $213.1 million in February and $643.8 million in January, and brought the surplus for the first quarter to $635.6

The deficit was primarily attributed to continuing increases in the price of oil. In March the volume of oil imported declined to 161.1 million barrels from Despite Loan 164.2 million barrels in February, while the price rose to $1.766 bil-

The average price of a barrel of oil in March rose to $10.95 from $9.32 the previous month. On a balance-of-payments basis, the merchandise trade surplus in the first quarter was a seasonally-adjusted $200 million compared with $1.4 million in the fourth quarter of 1973. The department noted that the weighted average of prices for crude oil and products entering U.S. ports in the first quarter was up 110 percent from the fourth quarter. The value of petroleum imports rose about 67 percent, or $1.9 billion, while volume declined about 20 percent. The $171.3-million deficit in was the first since the $39 6-million deficit recorded last June. It reflected record exports of $7.674 billion and record imports of $7.845 billion.

If insurance and freight are added to the import figure, the dollar value of imports climbs to $3,377 billion. On this basis the merchandise trade balance in March shows a deficit of $702.7 million compared with a deficit of $297.7 million. On this basis, the deficit for the first three months is $334.3 million.

In another report, the department said the composite index of leading indicators rose 1.7 percent in March following a down-

are the words critics have used to praise the novels of Françoise Sagan, She possessed to an uncommon degree, they said, the typically French flair for nuance. She could stretch in a character in a gesture, immortalize him or her in a line or two of dialogue. Her sentences were as well shaped as a Chanel suit. She dealt in essences, light and sensuous as a perfume. National pride preened itself on her, au-Lious to compare her to Colette. as if these two particular writers embodied something that was peculiarly and exclusively French. Now, in "Scars on the Soul." woman behind the novels and very nearly destroyed her own myth. The book is a very flimsy novella padded out by alternating chapters of "Self-Portrait" in which she talks about the writing of this work, about her position as an enfant terrible in French culture, about life, love, death, war, women's liberation. nature, the decline of la gloire. and whatever else she can find in her Vuitton bag.

The nonfiction part of the book paradoxically discards all those qualities for which Miss Sagan was esteemed. Her "cool," her chic, her sophistication, her cynicism, worn like the Legion of Honor, are replaced by a coy poinposity and page after page of puerile philosophizing. Here, for example, is Miss Sagan on her countrymen: "Just look at you:selves, little Frenchmen, well fed. ill-mannered, showing off wherever you are-even to your partner in the act of love. Conformism and snobbery lurk under the bedclothes with the same arrogant complacency as in drawing rooms." Moving on to God, she sars: ... Why did its have to make himself necessary solely by way of compensation?" She believed in him, she tells us, until she saw a film about Dacheu. Now, she would "face a priog squad rather than as; or do certain things ... ' She feels nothing but "revulsion, boredom and distaste" for the "mediocrity" of life in Paris. What would French writers do without boredom and mediocrity to inveigh against?! Nothing for it but to escape to deserted Deauville (ho, the voluptuousness of deserted places!) and to press her bare foot recklessly on the accelerator of her Ferrari. Fortunately, she is not married, for "the truth is that the married couple, or the individual, or the mass of people are completely deadened by a way of life that is designed to deaden them... and it follows from this of course ... that the inequality of the seres is blamed for the mutual enhaustion of a murried coupie. In defense of the intoxication of sports cars. Miss Sagan seriously warns the world at large that "only one in a hundred thousand recovers from drug addiction, and at what a price. after what damage!" Even the peasants in the provinces, she informs us, bave traded their tisanes for tranquilizers. Things have come to such a pass "in this vast, mindless cacophony that daily life has become meluctable, uncontrollable, and truly unacceptable to any civilized person..." Warming to her opoca-typec, she adds: "There are even times when I long for, ves, long for the advent of that steel gray sirplane, the sudden roor of the Miss Sagan has not even troubled to describe her catastrophe correctly-tine sudden roar" and "the black package"—and she of all people should know that the word "incluctable" can only be used ironically. But then she seems to bave developed a proce style appropriate to ber new at-titudes. In her story of Sebastian and Eleanor-a brother and sister resurrected from one of her plays—we find a disconcerting number of declamations like this one: "For, fust as the im-pressions of childhood or adolescence are registered and engraved on the memory far more deeply than those of middle age, so there are certain influences, cer-tain attractions, mental or physical which, if experienced at the tender, that's to say the awkward age, continue to exert their power 30 years later."

This is a syntactical fuss about nothing, a sentence that piles qualification and strews commas all over the place, merely for the sake of a platitude. Eleanor and Sebastian, her principal characters, are Swedes. tail blond and flawless, with 'mmensely long legs." Thought they live by sponging on friends and strangers, even to the extent of prostituting themselves, we are given to understand that mer transcend ordinary judgments, "since culture, elegance, and above all disinterestedness' have been "lieurs from the cradle." They are so disinterested, in fact, that they transcend personality too, successfully refraining from betraying any human frailties whatsoever. Perhaps "Scars on the Soul" would have been a better book if Miss Sagan had been less confiding about herself and more about her

Pro Football Makes Changes to Boost Offensive Game

Defensive Tactics Restricted, Field Goals Are Discouraged

esterday in an effort to enliven he National Football League

The new rules discourage field goals by returning the goal posts of the end line of the end zone, as in college football, and having missed field goals returned to the line of scrimmage if it is beyond the 20-yard line.

Forward passing will be encouraged by restricting the de-fensive tactics. Sudden-death overtime periods will be played in an effort to reduce the number of ties in regular season games as well as playoffs.

The goal posts were moved in 1933 from the end line of tha end zone to the goal line to encourage field-goal kicking. That same year, the lesgue permitted passes to be thrown anywhere behind the line of scrimmage to spur the serial game.

WFL Threat

Commissionner Pete Rozella denied that the changes were being made because of the incursions threatened by the new World Football League, but said that the new leagua might have

The initial consenus was that the changes would require more intelligent thinking by coaches, more risk taking on third and fourth downs, which most coaches dislike, and new versatility to the kicking game. The punter, for-example, will become more important, the field-goal kicker less. The rules changes were presented to the owners of the 26 teams

Canada Bill to Outlaw

U.S. Football Advances OTTAWA, April 26 (AP).—The government's bill to outlaw U.S. football leagues in Canada won approval in principle by the House of Commons.

The bill now goes before a Com-mons committee, where witnesses may be called. Designed primarily to prevent the Toronto North-men of the new World Football League from operating, tha bili divided the Commons along party lines, with Liberals supporting it and Conservatives opposed. The vote was 118 to 90.

How the New Rules Shape Up

The package of nine NFL revisions, generally, is as follows:

1. One sudden death period of 15 minutes duration will be played at the end of any tie game to help break ties. The first team to score in the extra period wins. If there is no score, the ties team to like the counter of the house of the hous regular season games over the past five years, the number of ties has averaged six per year.

2. Kickoffs are to take place from the kicking teact's 35-yard line, rather than the 40, which puts an added ourden on the kicker trying to reach or go beyond the opponent's end zone. The purpose is to bring out more running returns of bickoffs rather than the no return and the static touchback that puts the ball on the receiving teams 20-yard hne.

3. Goal posts will be moved to the back of the end zone adding 10 yards to field-goal attempts and the point-after-touchdown kick.
The latter becomes a 19-yard attempt rather than one from only 9

4. If a field goal attempt is nn good, the ball goes back to the line of scrimmage, or the 20-yard line, whichever is farther from the goal line. Heretofore, the ball returned to the 20 after all failures. Random field-goal attempts from 40 yards out and beyond on fourth dean will be far fewer, while the nut-of-bounds punt maide the opponent's 10-yard line the coffin-corner kicks will increase,

5. Members of the kicking team cannot run downfield until the ball is kicked. This haiding action at the line of scrumnage will make sick returns more popular and the no-return fair catch less so. 6. To enhance a wide receiver's ability in get free in catch a pass. be cannot be cut down by a block below the knees-the so-called roll

7. Once the receiver is downfield by more than three yards from the line of scrimmage, he can be hit only once by any defending player. This change, in effect, rules out the bump and run technique whereby the defending back continually bit the receiver, ran with him and then hit bim again to knock him out of the pass pattern. 8. The wide receiver, however, can no longer return to the line of scrimmage and block a defender below the waist. This climmates the crackback block on the linebacker. 9. The penalty for halding by an offensive blocker was reduced from 15 yards to 10. The purpose is to give the offensive team a little better chance to move the ball after the penalty has been assessed.

NEW YORK, April 26 NYT .-"If they'd met another day," coach George Allen of the Washington Redshins said, "they probably would have brought back the flying wedge."

An Opel Moves Into a Brabham for Madrid Race

By Bernard Kirsch

MADRID, April 26 (IHT) .- His father mobiles and Rikky von Opel knew when to start driving them.

"Timing is the most important thing in life," said the 26-year-old head of the Opel dynasty. "I hit automotive driving at the right time."

This is a good season for up-and-coming grand prix drivers to establish their names. Jackie Stewart, last year's champion, has quit. Emerson Filtipaldi, woo last year won the races that Stewart didn't, has switched teams and is still growing accustomed to his Marlboro. In three grand prix races this season, three different drivers have won-Fittipaldi, Denoy Hulme, also in a Mariboro, and Carlos Reutemann in a Brabliam.

Rikky von Opel, great grandsoo of the founder of the Opel automobile firm, will he Reutemann's leaumate for the rest of this season. Sunday, he will be getting his lughs in the Spanish Grand Prix on the short but twisting Jarama Circuit, 20 miles outside Madrid. It will be his first drive in a Brabham, the first time he has driven a competitive formula-one Though a positive thinker, he does not expect to win Sunday. He says he is was a driver with a name that sounded through with making "premature" deci-

Last year, after three seasons of formula-four and formula-three meetings, Rikky decided to make the big jump. He formed his own team and had a car, the Ensign, built for him. It was too much too soon, even for an Opel.

Went to U.S.

Late in the 19th century, people were also telling Adam Opel that his machine was before its time. They were wrong. The Opel family has not made many bad decisions. In 1928, a year before the Depression, Rikky's father, Pritz—then master of tite family's finances-sold his car-making business in Germany to General Molors, which kept the established Opel name. In 1929, Fritz von Opel moved to the United States.

Another decision that his father made was to "forbid" Rikky from becoming a race driver. So Rikky, who didn't want to go against his father's wishes, started driving under the pseudonym of Antonio Bronco. He said he chose the name bccause his mother was Spanish. Also, he had ence toyed with the idea of becoming a bullfighter, but decided he did not have enough Spanish blood in him to make it big in the arenas of Spain. Instead, he like it belonged to a matador. His father did not want his son involved dancetous rames because hikky was "the only son to carry on the dynasty, the last direct heir of Adam Opel. My father wanted me to give 100 percent to the family enterprises," Rikky said. The Opel money is now in investments

In the United States and Europe. When his father died three years ago, Ricky took charge of the investments and has since worked out a compromise arrangement with himself.

Very Active

He is occupied from six to eight months with auto racing, and he devotes four months to his business offices in London. New York and Dusseldorf. When he can, during the summer, he tans himself at his summer home in St. Tropez.

His year is filled with activity. But if he wanted he would never have to work. Rikky, however, has developed into a competitive man, whether it be finance or cars. Auto racing is dangerous, and come people wonder why a man whn bas everyting takes risks on his life.

Rikky, a good-looking man who would rather talk about metaphysics than nuts and bolte, says, "All my friends think I'm completely mad." It was the same way with the friends of Peter Revson, killed earlier this month in a practice crash. Rikky, born in New York, says, "I like to live under pressure," and the excitement of auto racing plus his business affairs give him a full life. He says, "Competing Is one thing that turns me on. I like to do what is hardest and the most difficult."

So when he was offered a chance last week of driving for the Brabbam team, he immediately accepted. "You like to go to the top in anything that you do," Rikky sald.

In today's opening practice runs for Sunday's race, an official standing on the wrong side of the course was hit by the Marlboro of Hulme and was taken to a hospital in serious condition. When the training resumed, the Lotus of Sweden's Ronnie Peterson clocked the fasiest lap time, I minute, 18.47 seconds. Second and third were the Ferraris of Nikki Lauda of Austria and Switzerland's Clay Regazooni. Reutemann had the fourth best clocking.

Opel had a bad o pening day, with the worst qualifying time of the 29 starters. His car's new engine broke down early in practice. By the end of the day, he had a new one.

Art Buchwald Plain Speaking

WASHINGTON.—One of the What do you intend to do most successful books of the about it? Fear is "Plain Speaking." Merle Miller's interviews with Harry Truman when the former President was living in Independence, Mo. Mr. Truman was quite frank -nino sid steeds ions of the people he knew when he was President.

It is quite possible that 20 years from now someone like Merlo Miller might take his tape recorder to San Clemenic and interview

Buchwald former President Nixon on his 81st birthday. It could go something like this, -Mr. President, what do you consider was your greatest accomplishment wheo you were in the White House?

A-I kept them from getting the tapes. They did everything they could but they never found them. Do you know where they were hidden?

A-I had a pumpkin patch just behind the rese garden and I hid the tapes in the pumpkins. I got the idea from Alger Hiss.

Q-That was a great idea. Mr. President. Without the tapes, of course, they couldn't find any evidence to impeach you.

A-You can say that again. To this day no one has been able to find them. You know the special prosecutor is still asking for them, Every week someone serves me a subpoens. But I've ignored them all. If I've said it once I've said it a hundred times, 22 years of Watergate is enough.

Q-I noticed you were just served with a subpoena last week.

$139,200 for Yiolin

LONDON, April 26 (UPI) .--U.S. violinist Elaine Weldon sold her Guarneri violin yesterday for £58.000 ($139.200), th: second highest auction price ever paid for a musical instrument. A apokesman for Christie's where the sale was held, said the highest price paid for a violin was $201,600 for a Stradivarius at Sotheby's in 1971.

A-James St. Clair is in the next room writing an answer to it. Q-Is he still working for you?

A-Yup, he's getting a little deaf and his eyesight is not as good as it used to be, but he's still one heck of a lawyer. Anyone that can keep stringing along the House Judiciary Committee for two decades is my kind of nibn.

Tou see, the trick was never to say we wouldn't give them the tapes. The trick was to always say we were working oo it, and we'd give them an answer in a few weeks. It's been going on since 1974 and here we are in 1924, and they still haven't got what they've asked for.

Q-Next to keeping the House from getting the tapes, what do you consider your greatest accom-plishment as President?

A-Paying my back income taxes. I want to tell you that was some blow when they asked me for a half-million dollars. If I hadn't gone into the real estate business with Bebe Rebozo after I left the White House, I don't think I would ever have gotten even. But now that we've got the San Clemente Sun City for Senior Citizens and the Key Biscayne Singles Condominium project. we're io fat city.

Q-How would you assess the people who worked for you?

A-They were the finest men I've ever known. Naturally I was sorry to see so many of them go to jail. But when you're President of the United States you can't let personal emotions get involved in your decisions. Q-What did you think of Gerry Ford? A-I never trusted the man. He kept saying I should turn over all the evidence I had to the committee. You know something? I don't think he was as duotb as everyone said he was. He knew if I turoed over the evidence he'd become President.

Q-Mr. President, !t's been 18 years now since you left office. Is there one thing you would have done differently?

A-Yes. I would have advised George Allen of the Redskins to send Larry Brown off tackle, in-stead of having Billy Kilmer throw a pass to Charley Taylor in the Superbowl.

Exterior view of Japanese palace to be used as a guesthouse for inreign dignitaries.

Japan's 'Versailles'—$1-Billion Guesthouse

By Sam Jameson

TOKYO—Sixty-five years ago, Japan built a miniature version of the palace of Versaihes for its crown prince, later to become Emperor Taishi (1912-1926).

Now his palace has been refurbished and turned into a state guesthouse. The result is a $1-billion memorial to a Japanese dream to "catch up with the West," a reminder of the days of the Meiji era in Japan when a nation unsure of itself internationally turned to foreign models in a desperate effort to modernize,

The ceremonial opening of the refurhished huilding adjacent to Crown Prince Akihito's palace in the Akasaka section of Tokyo took place this week.

The Costs

The land alone-140,000 square yardswas valued at $596 million hy the Japanese real estate federation. The building, if constructed today, would cost at least $370 million, according to the architects who spent five years refurbishing and modernizing it. The actual cost of refurhishing, paid by the government, came to $35.3 million.

Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has called it a "state guesthouse without parallel in the world"-and that it may be. But the state guests who use it will find httle in it to remind themselves they are in Japan. Only a separate annex added to the compound provides a Japanese flavor. It features a very large dining room with tatami (traditional straw mat) flooring. fashioned to fit foreign tastes with door frames tail enough to allow even a 6-foot-4 foreigner to pass beneath without bumping his head, and cushioned seats placed before a long table under which a depression in the floor has been fitted to allow upright sitting rather than the traditional folded-leg

Its simplicity is a breathtaking contrast to the rest of the palace. The entrance, an area of about 40 square feet, is highled to display a single 6 inch-tall flower vase hanging from the wall.

In the palace, lions' heads, ornate gold carvings plastering pillars, paintings on the ceilings, cloisonne works and thousands of 18th-century-styled designs provide an aura of overwhelming opulence.

27 Persons

The 300-room guesthouse has been fitted to sleep a state guest and a retinne of only 26 persons.

Who will be the first visitor to use it has become the question. The late French President Georges Pompidou, who had scheduled a trip to Japan in April (which he cancelled before his death) was to have received that bonor.

Now, President Nixon, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev. and Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos all appear to be in the running. None of them has announced dates for a visit to Japan but trips by all of them are being discussed for 1974.

Whoever happens to be the first will discover that great attention has been paid to detail. Almost every carving in the building has been restored. To make the palace more comfortable, all the floors were ripped up, heating facilities installed and new floors laid. Then an air-conditioning system was put in. It took three years to restore a single French painting in the ceiling of a salon,

More thao $2.5 million was spent on furniture-of which there are 1,847 pieces. The money went toward repairing 510 original pieces, making copies of 420 more and purchasing 400 pieces from abroad.

Fidelity.

At the turn of the century when the palace was built (1899 to 1909), the archttects were so faithful to the Versailles ideas that they installed only six toiletsthat was all there were at Versailles. A staff of 43 has been assigned to manage the building, Janitors, waiters, cooks and other servants will be taken on temporarily as necessity dictates. The palace has not been used regularly since 1925 when Hirohito became emperor.

After World War II the property was turned over to the government and, for a while, used as the library for the Diet (parliament). Now, it is going back into service -for foreigners only.

Patriots' Awards to PEOPLE: Hope, Mamie Eisenhower

Bob Hope and Mamie Eisen-hower have received awards from the Pittsburgh Committee of 76 in recognition of their patriotism. Hope was in Pittsburgh Thursday to accept the Constellation Award for his services in entertaining U.S. troops around the world. Accepting the Molly Pitcher Patriot Award for Mrs. Eisenhower was Maj. Gen. Fred Davison, commanding general of the Army's Washington district. In the first award ceremony in 1973, the kudos went to President and Mrs. Nixon. 2 4 8

The bout between former heavyweight champlon Jack Dempsey and his landlord ended in a draw Thursday in a New York court. Dempsey had refused to pay a stiff rent increase for his Broadway restaurant. The Inch Corporation threatened to evict him. In court. Dempsey agreed to start paying the new rent May 1, with the landlord agreeing not to evict him before Dec. 31. A circuit court jury has awarded $1,000 to a Memphis. Tenn, woman who said she was struck and insulted by singer Jerry Lee Lewis at a nightclub in 1971. Ann McMahon testifled that Lewis had made vulgar and in-sulting remarks to her over the PA system, pulled her across the organ he was playing and a few minutes later, threw a music hook a' her and then atruck her in the face. Lewis denied the accusations. He claimed that Mrs. Mo-Mabon threw a book at him sfter he refused to play a song she had requested.

Henry Fonda is in Lenox Hill Hospital in New York, suffering from what a spokesman called absolute, complete exhaustion." The 58-year-old actor collapsed in his dressing room Tuesday night after a performance in his grueling one-man play, "Clarence Darrow." It is unlikely that Fonda will be able to go on nationwide tour with the play, as originally planned. Mrs. Fonda said Thursday that her husband "isn't really sick-they put him in the hospital because that's the only place you can keep him quiet. The play had been scheduled to close in New York Saturday.
